$9 million bond proposed to expand and renovate fire district buildings

Approximate tax increase is $67 a year per household

BY SAM DESMOND

On Tuesday, April 26, the community will vote on approving a $9 million, 15-year bond for the Sayville Fire District.

With the fire district being able to cover about half of the bond and other grants, the burden to the taxpayer will be a tax increase around $350,000 over a 15-year bond.

For an average household assessed at a $42,000, it comes out to $67 a year, which over a 15-year period will be $1,005.

The last time a bond was presented to the community for the fire district was in 1995 to add two bays to Station 1.

"The district has worked well to ensure that taxpayers in the community have not been burdened over the years, as evidenced by not having a bond vote in 27 years, but this bond is to finish and upgrade our two stations to be in line with safety and efficiency standards," said fire commissioner Mark Schmittz.

The bond vote of $9 million includes the following renovations/updates:

- Renovating the hall and kitchen (last phase of 10-year renovation plan that has previously included upgrading the roof)
- Installation of lockers (for the decontamination room. To mitigate exposure to carcinogenic particles, it is recommended that firefighters shower within one hour of exposure. The fire district already has specialized wipes to give to firefighters after responding to a call with a fire to decontaminate, especially the neck and groin area where the carcinogenic particles have been proven to accumulate the most. Ideally, firefighters should shower and have their turnout gear washed immediately after responding to a fire. Having the lockers will allow firefighters to shower and change into sweatpants or other clothing to return home. Currently, there are two sets of washers and dryers: one set for personal clothes and one set for turnout gear)

- Installation of three bays, all north facing, still pulling out into Broadway. (Station 2 was built in 1984 and was designed for 25 members with a 27-foot rig. Today, the rigs are 32 feet to 34 feet with a ladder truck at 44 feet. The Sayville Fire

Flags installed for charity run for historic church renovation

Feather flags announcing the upcoming 5K Firecracker Run on July 4 were received by the Oakdale Historical Society and charity leaders this Saturday, April 16.

An incredibly windy day, the feather flags shook feverishly while on display.

The flags will eventually frame the start and finish lines at the gates in front of the Bourne Mansion.

All proceeds from the run will go towards the restoration/replacement of St. John's (the second-oldest church in Suffolk County located in Oakdale) windows, which include original colonial period glass as well as stained glass from a Brooklyn church that are from France.

"Dave Chan, our race coordinator, has really taken the lead in this; under his direction we have really been taking step after step in making this spectacular," said MaryAnn Almes, president of the Oakdale Historical Society.

Sayville Running Company has signed on as official timers for the event in July.

Meadow Croft cleanup

The Bayport-Blue Point Heritage Association and the Sayville football team with a recovered antique hay rake.

On Sunday, April 3, volunteers gathered at the Meadow Croft Roosevelt Estate to recover antique farm equipment and fight invasive species on the property. Choices for long-term care

Being able to care for oneself independently can be a source of pride. However, illness or age can affect people in ways that require them to seek assistance with medical needs or daily activities for an extended period of time. In such instances, long-term care services can fill a need.

Long-term care assists people in their homes, in the community or in various types of facilities with various daily and medical requirements. According to WebMD, research shows that many people are unaware of long-term care options or may be misinformed about what's out there.

Home care

Various services can be utilized in the comfort of home. According to the Knoxville-Knox County Community Action Committee Office on Aging, services can include home-delivered meals, pest control, minor home modifications, or visiting nurses and health aides. Other benefits may include shopping or physical therapy.

Community care

Community services can include adult day care centers, meal programs, senior centers, community transportation, and others. Community services enable people to continue to live in the community with some support. They also may help family or friends serving as caregivers enjoy a break from the assistance they have been providing.

It is never too early to begin planning for elder care that may include long-term care possibilities. Individuals are urged to work with an elder care lawyer to help navigate the complexities of planning for medical care and their potential financial needs.

Teeth have stem cells!

Stem cells have been found to help the body renew and repair itself. For decades, stem cells have been found in bone marrow and umbilical cord blood to treat diseases. In 2000, stem cells were discovered in teeth! Dental stem cells from healthy extracted adult and primary (baby) teeth are a simple and convenient source of potent high quality stem cells. These stem cells can be easily collected and cryopreserved for future dental and medical applications.

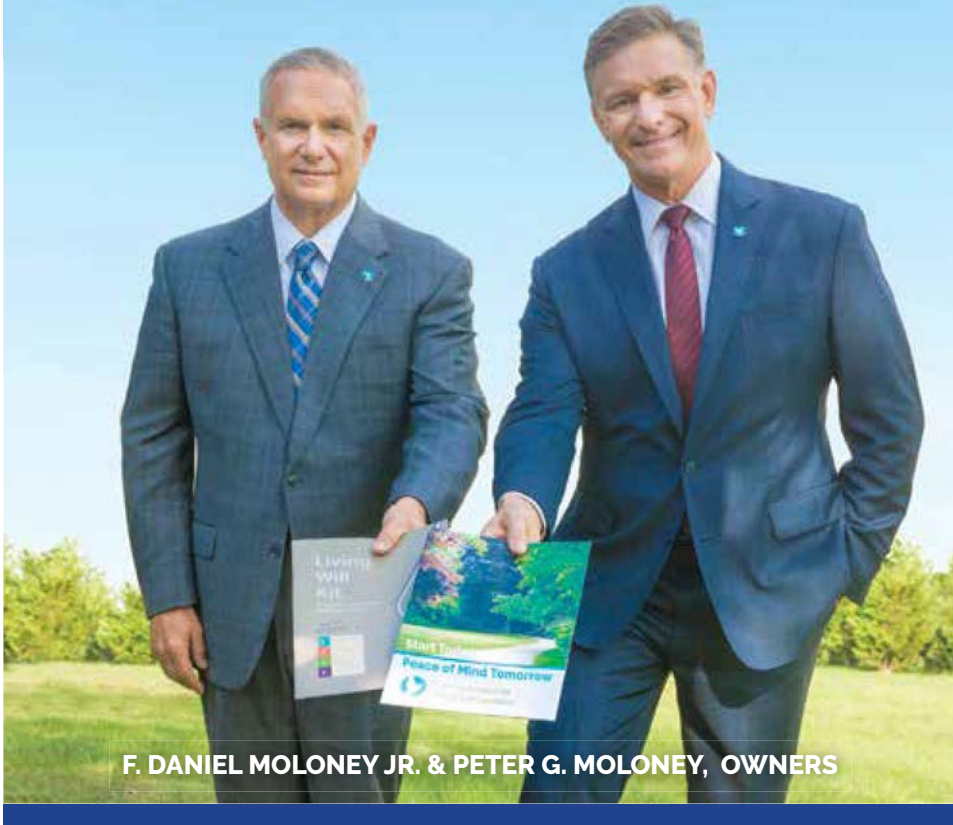

Primary teeth that have naturally exfoliated or extracted and permanent teeth including wisdom teeth that have been extracted for orthodontics (braces) or other reasons can be used as a source of stem cells.

Since the discovery of dental stem cells in adult teeth in 2000 by scientists, research into possible clinical uses of these cells has accelerated around the world. Dental stem cells have already been successfully used in clinical studies to regenerate alveolar bone (that which is around the tooth), as well as periodontal ligament (that which holds the tooth in its socket) in human patients. It is now known that stem cells can be collected from dental pulp of primary and permanent teeth, periodontal ligament, apical papilla and the dental follicle. These dental stem cells can be differentiated into a range of tissues useful for regenerative dentistry and medicine. The accessibility and utility of these stem cells that would otherwise be discarded suggest a bright future for the routine use of dental stem cells. With cryopreservation, this provides the opportunity for patients, who are having otherwise healthy teeth removed in the normal course of dental care, to save their own stem cells today for uses tomorrow.

Does having a seizure mean you have epilepsy?

OUR EXPERTS ANSWER YOUR QUESTIONS

Rebecca Spiegel, MD
Neurologist
Chief, Stony Brook Comprehensive Level 4 Epilepsy Center

Chuck Mikell, MD
Neurosurgeon
Stony Brook Comprehensive Level 4 Epilepsy Center

Epilepsy and seizures affect more than three million Americans.

What's the difference between a seizure and epilepsy?

Dr. Mikell: Seizures happen when your nerve cells fire more rapidly and with less control than usual, affecting how you act or feel. These range from a brief sensory or motor abnormality to a full loss of consciousness with the potential for falling, shaking and difficulty breathing. Epilepsy refers to a brain disorder resulting in multiple seizures.

Does having a seizure mean you have epilepsy?

Dr. Spiegel: No, seizures are not always related to epilepsy. They can be a symptom of a disruption of brain function, such as from a high fever (in children), exposure to certain medications or substances as well as an electrolyte imbalance. Ten percent of Americans will experience a seizure at least once in their lifetime; the highest incidence occurring under the age of two and over the age of 65.

What causes epilepsy?

Dr. Spiegel: Epilepsy may be related to genetic factors that lead brain cells to misfire and can begin in infancy and childhood. However, in most cases, there is no clear genetic cause, and the seizures may be due to structural abnormalities in the brain due to infections, brain, trauma, tumors or stroke, to name just a few examples. Sometimes, no clear cause is found on initial testing, and the neurologist has to look further.

How is epilepsy treated?

Dr. Spiegel: For most, anti-seizure drugs help control the seizures. Diet can also be a treatment for some, such as the ketogenic diet or a modified Atkins diet, when prescribed by a physician and carefully monitored by a dietitian.

Dr. Mikell: When anti-seizure medications and dietary modifications fail, surgery may be recommended for those whose seizures are associated with structural brain abnormalities, such as brain tumors, malformations of blood vessels and damage related to strokes. There are basically three types of seizure surgery — the surgical removal (resection) of the lesion that is causing the seizure, ablation (using heat to treat the lesion) and electronic modulation that delivers current to the brain before a seizure happens to control or reduce the seizure's effect. All of these surgeries can be performed at Stony Brook.

How controllable is epilepsy?

Dr. Mikell: Most people with epilepsy do very well when properly diagnosed and treated. Nationally, two out of three people with epilepsy can be expected to enter remission; that is, five or more years free of seizures while using medication.

What distinguishes Stony Brook's approach?

Dr. Spiegel: Stony Brook is a National Association of Epilepsy Centers-designated Level 4 Epilepsy Center. This is the highest level an epilepsy center can attain. It means that an epilepsy center must have the professional expertise and facilities to provide the most advanced level of medical and surgical evaluation and treatment for patients with complex epilepsy. Patients who have persistent, recurrent seizures or those with an unconfirmed seizure diagnosis can benefit from the advanced services

Up to $5,000 for businesses under Keep Islip Thriving

COVID-impacted businesses can apply for grant directly with Town of Islip

BY SAM DESMOND

Local businesses (under 500 employees) and not-for-profit organizations within the Town of Islip may be eligible for relief grants (i.e. no repayment) from the town of up to $5,000 in a new program called Keep Islip Thriving (KIT).

The initiative comes from monies received by the Town of Islip through the American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) that was instituted as a response to financial devastation caused by the pandemic closures and mandates.

KIT, as it is administered by the town, is meant to be user-friendly towards the establishments by not requiring professional assistance to complete the application.

“The ARPA process proved to be too onerous in its paperwork and we wanted to make our relief fund accessible to our community,” said supervisor Angie Carpenter.

The Keep Islip Thriving fund opened to business owners and not-for-profits approximately two weeks ago and has already received a number of applications.

The town is planning to send letters to businesses and chambers of commerce to get the word out.

“We’ll be knocking on doors to let people know about this,” said Carpenter.

Currently, $1.5 million has been allocated to Keep Islip Thriving, but the town can authorize more as it determines the response and needs from the Town of Islip community.

In the first wave of ARPA funds, $457 million went directly to Suffolk County. Town of Islip, with approximately 330,000 residents, is the third most populous city in the state, but did not make the ARPA threshold of 500,000 to be allocated monies directly.

This second round of ARPA funds will give $47 million over two years in two installments directly to the town. Categories for usage were intricately defined.

The application for KIT grants is available online and the completed application can be mailed back to the town.

The requirements for the grant include:

Business must be located within the Town of Islip and have at least two (2) years of business operating history.

Business must have no more than five-hundred (500) full-time equivalent employees.

Business must demonstrate an identifiable financial hardship as a result of COVID-19. Financial hardship must be documented, quantifiable, and clearly driven by COVID-19.

Business must be in good standing and current on its federal, state and local tax obligations and have no outstanding liens or judgments.

Business must be in good standing with the Town and have no outstanding Town Code violations.

Applicant must self-certify the eligibility requirements and to the proposed use of funds on the application.

Eligible activities are defined as: “Activities eligible for funding must be a direct result of supporting public health and response activities associated with the COVID-19 pandemic.”

This includes:

Innovation to promote outdoor business to protect employee and public health.

Payroll/employee retention or supporting employees, including but not limited to Workers Comp Insurance premium and Unemployment Insurance premium increases related to COVID-19, employee paid leave due to COVID-19 illness.

Purchase of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) to protect employee and public health and efforts to sanitize the business environment.

Rent or mortgage payments (excluding property tax payments). • Addressing temporary COVID-19 related restrictions on business activity. • Increasing technology capacity to enable alternative work forms.

Creating new marketing campaigns or business plans. • Paying vendor invoices. • Facility cleaning/restoration.

Costs associated with additional training or virtual learning to implement COVID19 safety measures.

Expenses required to plan for a safe reopening such as expert assessments and/or to conduct research or market surveys.

The four-page application includes an entire page for a narrative to be submitted explaining the financial impacts of COVID on the business. ■

Applications for the KIT Grant can be submitted via email to islip-covidgrants@islipny.gov, or mailed to the Town of Islip Office of Economic Development located at 40 Nassau Avenue, Islip 11751.

For additional information, including eligibility and how to download the application, visit the Town’s website at www.islipny.gov/kit, or call the Office of Economic Development at (631) 224-5512.

Early start to summer at Flo's

Blue Point hotspot reopens

BY SAM DESMOND

For the kids, there's simple ice cream delights and triple-thick shakes to enjoy the warm weather. ■

Summer started earlier this season for Blue Point with the indisputable summer gathering spot for the community, Flo's, opening on Thursday, April 14.

Owner Connor Vigliotta said of the earlier opening date (Flo's has traditionally opened Memorial Day weekend), "During the pandemic, we decided to open earlier because it seemed the best for our customers, and we decided to keep that."

While staples of the Flo's menu have been kept, such as the standard burger on potato bread, there were some new, inventive items that were added for the discerning foodie.

The salmon sandwich features grilled salmon with pickled cucumber, avocado, and spicy mayo on toasted ciabatta bread. Light and reminiscent of island fare, the sandwich seems best enjoyed on a breezier night of gathering with friends around the ample, horseshoe seating of Flo's.

The shrimp tiger roll is shrimp tossed with mayonnaise, green onions, celery and chives on toasted potato bread, and had a bit of a "Japonaise-glaze" flair to it, with all the sushi elements but the rice. The punchiness of the delicate green onions and chives mixed with the refreshing snap of the celery is sure to be a summer favorite for the hottest of days.

Another new sandwich, albeit not sampled by our "epicurious" staff, is the decadent oysters Rockefeller special that includes fried oysters topped with creamed spinach and bacon on ciabatta bread. A nuanced, contemporary take on the surf and turf, this sandwich will hit all corners of the flavor palate.

Not hungry but want to sit and enjoy the sound of the bay and summer fun? Flo's has four batches of summer concoctions on tap with varied artisan ingredients, like lavender and rosemary with gin and vodka bases. Local beers are also on tap.

The salmon sandwich (left) is a perfect way to usher in the summer weekend after a long week at work pining for the beach. Refreshingly citric, the tiger shrimp sandwich (above) is a nice, light alternative to the heavier lobster roll.

Parkville Plaza Deli grand opening

Sayville's beloved Parkville Plaza Deli had its grand opening on Friday, April 15. Opening up at 5 a.m., Suffolk County News' reporter was the 10th customer of the day at 7:15 a.m.

While our reporter did not order a bacon, egg, and cheese, which our Sayville staff said was the cornerstone of the deli, and instead opted for a Cuban panini, the food lived up to its high reputation for quality and deliciousness.

Rick Kaywood, one of the owners of the newly renovated Parkville Plaza Deli, was ecstatic at opening a traditionally well-patronized establishment after being shuttered for two and a half years following a fire in October 2019.

Kaywood and associates had only taken over the deli in March of that year. With the pandemic, it took even longer than planned to reopen.

But the renovation offers a fantastic new setup, with this iteration of the deli featuring a bright new salad bar and new menu items like falafels and gyros.

"We really wanted to give the community all that Parkville offered and more," said Kaywood.

Featuring a renowned chef who used to head the kitchen at the prestigious Ohoka Castle, the Parkville Plaza Deli is slated to become a community fixture again.

An official ribbon cutting held by the Greater Sayville Chamber of Commerce will take place in the next coming weeks.

Controversial book under review

Gender and sexuality-focused book temporarily pulled from high school library

BY SAM DESMOND

A book titled "Gender Queer: A Memoir," by non-binary author Maia Kobabe, has come under fire in the Connetquot School District with parents asking administration to take the book out of circulation at Connetquot High School.

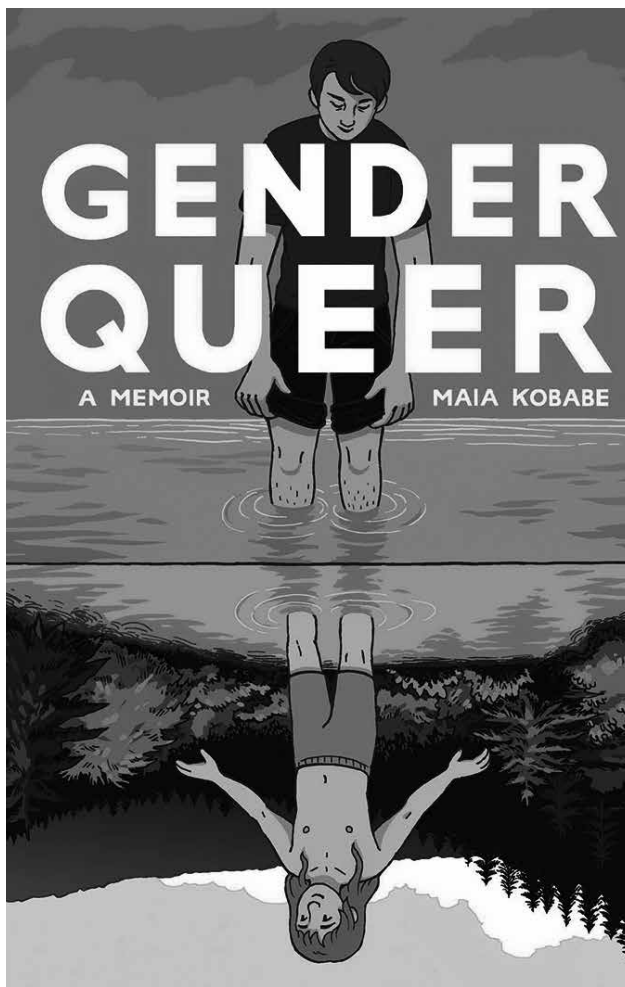

Since then, the district has provided the following statement: "As per Board of Education policy, if a piece of literature housed in one of our school libraries is challenged by a parent/guardian based on content, the selection is temporarily removed from circulation pending review by a committee."

CONNETQUOT Recently, the district received such a request for the book 'Gender Queer,' which is in the high school's Library Media Center's collection. The review process is currently ongoing."

Connetquot School District was asked how long the review process can take and what members of the administration and/or faculty were on the committee to review, but did not respond to Suffolk County News by time of print.

Jacquelyn DiLorenzo, a Bohemia native and current children's librarian at the Connetquot Public Library, who opposes the book's inclusion in the high school library said, "The book in question has mature content that shouldn't be made so available to minors. The content should be discussed with a parent or guardian before a child has access to it. A school library bypasses the step when there is parental input and the opportunity for meaningful dialogue about its contents."

Jenna Murphy, a Ronkonkoma resident who is in favor of the book being available to students at the high school library, said, "There is no reason to remove any book from a library shelf. Removing 'Gender Queer' should be no different. A school library, or any library, should be a place where any person can learn—learn anything, without judgment and without scorn or embarrassment. Nothing should be limited in a library and all libraries should be a safe place. My only wish is for anyone that wants to learn, can."

The book has come into the national spotlight as one of 2021's "most banned books" according to a report by NBC News, with its presence in schools being formally challenged in at least 11 states.

Gov. Greg Abbott (R-Texas) and Gov. Henry McMaster (R-South Carolina) referred to the book as "obscene" and "pornographic," both strongly questioning "[how the] books ended up on school shelves."

The book explores themes of identity and sexuality and has won awards from the American Library Association and the Young Adult Library Services Association (YALSA). The ALA's annual Alex Award recognizes 10 books that were originally written for adults, but reverberate strongly with teenagers and other youth readers.

Kobabe, who uses gender-neutral Spivak pronouns e, em and eir, has stated in interviews that the graphic novel (a term meant to describe a comic-book style, not an adjective for the content), which was published in 2019, is meant to be a guide on gender identity, coming out, the "trauma of being nonbinary in a society that largely sees gender as man or woman."

Most controversial about the graphic novel is a depiction of a character performing a sexual act on another character's mock genitalia. The section in question features a bird's-eye view and a side view of a sexual act in the panel. In another section of the graphic novel, the 14-year-old main character imagines a scene from Ancient Greece where an older man is depicted touching the genitalia of a seemingly much younger, masculine-presenting character.

BAYPORT to collect signatures from the community, setting up a post at baseball fields on Bayport Commons.

Daniel Bertran, Elizabeth Cavuto, Amy Hope, and Jenna Kennedy greeted enthusiastic and curious community members leaving a baseball game and informed them of their intentions to run for the school board as a team.

In order to formally apply to be a candidate, potential candidates must collect at least 25 signatures from community members to make the ballot. The four candidates exceeded that number less than half an hour of being at the field.

Cavuto, who ran last year, said of her impetus for running again, "I think it's important to give back to the community and I want to do what's best for our kids. That's still my motivation. We want to be a collaborative team of the district."

Kennedy said of her motivation to run, "My son is going to Sylvan this year as a kindergartener, and I would like to be an advocate for all children and a voice for all parents... These are precious years and [we all] want to be involved as much as possible."

Bertran said, "The school board is a challenging job and I think they can do better... [We] are strong proponents of parental choice and very interested in transparency... We want to know what they're [the school board] voting on, what curriculum that is discussed."

When asked to expand on his definition on transparency, Bertran said, "When people ask questions, we'll give them that answer; we shouldn't stand by and say we don't discuss votes behind closed doors."

Some controversy later followed on social media, with community members upset that the event had not been advertised to more accessible community Facebook pages.

A resident of Bayport had posted the information about the signature gathering on a smaller community group approximately half an hour before it began.

Responding on behalf of all four candidates, Elizabeth Cavuto said, "The team used the Bayport Commons as a meeting place for those who expressed interest in signing our petitions. This was not an occasion to meet and/or question potential candidates, but simply to collect the required number of signatures necessary to submit our names as candidates. We look forward to getting out to meet as many community members as we can in the coming weeks." ■

All four candidates successfully submitted their applications to the district clerk on Monday, April 18, and will be on the ballot for May 17.

Let's keep Islip thriving!

The new business assistance grant program is fantastic. Though we have finally seen the light at the end of this pandemic tunnel, the hurt for our local businesses is not over.

Islip Town supervisor Angie Carpenter and the Islip Town Board should be proud of the launch of their new KIT (Keep Islip Thriving) Grant Program. The program is funded by the American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA), and we could find no better use (locally) than to help our small-business owners and not-for-profits.

The KIT Grant Program, coordinated through the Department of Economic Development, will assist eligible candidates who demonstrate a negative financial impact due to COVID. Small businesses and not-for-profits that qualify for the KIT Grant can receive upwards of $5,000, with no repayment required. That is huge! We encourage local owners to not miss this opportunity.

"Islip businesses have long been the backbone of our community," said supervisor Angie Carpenter. "The town board and I remain committed to doing all we can to ensure their continued success for years to come."

We couldn't agree more and truly applaud them for this program.

HOW TO APPLY

Applications for the KIT Grant can be submitted via email to islip-covidgrants@islipny.gov, or mailed to the Town of Islip Office of Economic Development located at 40 Nassau Avenue, Islip 11751. For additional information, including eligibility and how to download the application, visit the town's website at www.islipny.gov/kit, or call the Office of Economic Development at (631) 224-5512.

Join your local civic!

Established in 2018, the Greater Sayville Civic Association (GSCA) is a nonprofit organization that comes together to help the community at large. The mission of the GSCA is to preserve and enhance the quality of life for resident members in Sayville/West Sayville and the surrounding communities. This is done by sharing information and fostering civic engagement around local environmental, cultural, and economic issues. The cost to join the civic is minimal, and their membership fees play a vital role in covering their operating costs including insurance, PO box, website fees and more. Without members, they would not be able to provide the programs and events that we have today. The meetings are held every first Wednesday at the Sayville Library at 6:45 p.m. and are always open to the public. Visit them at: <https://www.greatersayvillecivicassociation.com/>.

Roast pork with potatoes au gratin

BY DAVE ROGERS,
14-YEAR VETERAN WITH THE U.S. ARMY

As a kid, I loved going to my grandmother's house for Easter. Didn't so much enjoy the church service, but only because we had to wear our wool suits, and usually got new shoes which were basically hard leather wrapped around a piece of plywood, and with no time to break them in; it was usually the most uncomfortable three hours each year. My grandmother would start cooking the day before, and would get up early that morning to prep the food for the evening meal, which would consist of three to four meats, three to four vegetables, one to two starches, and a casserole or two. Don't worry—we won't cook all of that—it is enough for 10 people and a week of lunches for us kids.

For this episode, I will be cooking two of my favorite dishes from those meals. For this whole meal, I am going to be cooking in a pre-heated 375-degree heated oven.

Roast Pork:

I have made this before in a slow cooker, but I am going to do this in a one-pot-dish (cooking in my enamel lodge cast iron) for those looking for an easy-to-cook meal with little cleanup. As always, I am going to brine the meat in salt, pepper, white pepper, garlic, and let sit in the fridge for two to three hours.

3 lb. roast pork
4 cups of broth (kind is on you, but since making brown gravy I will use beef broth)
3 cloves minced garlic
½ chopped onion

1 pack asparagus
1 pack baby carrots
1 tbsp olive oil
¼ cup white wine (optional)
Salt, crushed peppercorn, dried minced garlic
A sprig of rosemary and thyme

I start by preheating my cast-iron pan, add my oil, onion and garlic, and sauté, being sure not to burn them. If I am using white wine, this is the time to add it. I then sear my pork roast in the pan, about 2-3 minutes on each side, until the outside has a nice golden-brown look to it. Remove from the heat, lift the roast pork and place the asparagus and baby carrots. Fill the pot with four cups of broth or until the roast pork is half covered. Top the roast pork with crushed sea salt, crushed peppercorn, and dried minced garlic. Add your thyme and rosemary, cover and place in oven at 375 degrees for 40-60 minutes, or until the roast pork is 140-170 degrees on the inside.

Au gratin potatoes:

This is a nice, creamy, cheesy meal. I have had it made easily with cream of chicken soup, or like I am making it here, more traditional.

4 russet or golden potatoes, sliced evenly (about ¼ inch)
1 clove minced garlic
½ white onion diced
3 tbsp of butter (I am using garlic herb butter)
3 tbsp all-purpose flour
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup milk
1 cup heavy cream
1 ½ cups Gouda cheese
1 slice horseradish cheese (optional)

I am again going to make this a one-pot dish. I am going to make sure to cut the potatoes before starting, using my preheated lodge cast iron-pan, adding my olive oil and half my butter. Once the butter is melted, I am going to sauté the garlic and onion. Add in the flour and mix until it starts to turn brown. Add in your milk and heavy cream; if you want it creamier you can just use milk. If it becomes too thick, add more milk; too watery, add more flour. Remove from heat, toss in the potatoes, and stir until all the potatoes are covered. Place the shredded cheese on top, adding the horseradish cheese if you want a little kick, cover and stick in the oven (at 375 degrees) for 40 minutes or until the top is golden-brown and the potatoes are soft to a fork's touch.

You can watch this episode of cooking with a veteran on my Facebook page @ cookingwithaveteran. Please be sure to like and share. If there is something you would like to see me cook feel free to reach out cookingwithaveteran@gmail.com. Until next time: Hoorah!

FIRE DEPT: Station 2 expansion proposed

District currently has 110 members, with 60 responding out of Station 2. Currently, there is a huge safety issue as firefighters have to gear up between the apparatuses and stop suiting up in order for the truck to pull out and are often hit with doors.)

- Locker room (For similar reasons to the lockers in Station 1. For safety concerns and to mitigate exposure to carcinogenic particles, it is recommended that a hot and cold zone be created where firefighters can safely and efficiently decontaminate through showers and washing of their turnout gear)

"Basically, Station 2 has reached the end of its life and to accommodate the expanded volunteer force we have now, we need to make these changes," said Schmittzehl.

The total bond of $9 million, includes hard (e.g. the renovation of the kitchen and hall) and soft costs (e.g. tables, chairs, door locks), and the fire district started obtaining bids in March.

"We wanted to know the costs and didn't want to get caught with rising inflation that's going on now," said Schmittzehl.

A contingency budget was built into the proposal and Schmittzehl said, "we went heavy on that [contingency budget]."

All excess money will go back into the bond, which will lower taxes.

The fire district has also received a number of grants including a $175,000 grant for new a new turnout gear washer, generator, and communications for Station 2. The 30-year-old generator at Station 2 would cost between $10,000 to $15,000 to fix, but the fire district applied for another $150,000 to put solar panels on Station 2.

"That's it. For the next 20 years, nothing major needs to be done to these buildings," said Schmittzehl. ■

Michael's Auto Repair owner and brother retires

BY LINDA LEUZZI

Oil changes, brake installations, engine overhauls, routine maintenance, and other necessities needed to make a vehicle run well are part of the daily norm at Michael's Auto Repair.

Michael Foschi started the Sayville business at 195 Middle Road in 1981; brother Anthony eventually joined him, manning the front counter.

But regulars knew if they were stranded when their car's tailpipe fell off, say, on Atlantic Avenue in Blue Point, they could call the busy Sayville office, get picked up quickly, as well as have their car towed. If the issue was miniscule, there was no charge. It was like that in a lot of different instances, including going to people's homes in rainstorms when the car wouldn't start; grateful recipients responded regularly with thank-you bagels and sandwiches.

The Foschi brothers are retiring, as is Bob Amendola, who also takes customer calls up front.

Chanpreet Singh, who owns Meineke Car Centers in Patchogue and Ronkonkoma as well as Maximum Auto in Port Jefferson, is the new owner of Michael's Auto Repair, who promises "everything remains the same, including current staff." And he will be there, he said.

It's one thing knowing your vehicle is in good hands, but part of the charm of coming to the Foschis was experiencing their dry sense of humor. It percolated like an impish undercurrent. Always polite, following up when promised, they might poke fun at your beloved boxer hanging out the car window as you drove by. It was a mix of that, photos of Anthony's four dogs on a corkboard, as well as those of the Virgin Mary. They took good care of older moms who brought their cars in, too. "You're lucky to still have her," they'd say.

"We always tried to take care of our customers," said Michael. "I never saw the upside of cheating anyone."

Their customer base has always been local, mostly Sayville, Bayport, Blue Point, Bohemia. "Some will come from the North Fork or Babylon, but those are people who lived here and used us and then moved," Michael said.

Both men are Sayville High School graduates. Anthony graduated in 1973, Michael in 1975.

"I started working here in 11th and 12th grade," said Michael. "Back then, it was Don's Auto Repair. My father, Cesare, owned a nursery on China Road, 4 acres, so as teens we always got cars and beat the heck out of them driving on some of the nursery land."

Michael, in fact, wound up racing cars later on; he pulled out a photo of an orange Formula 1 he owned, as well as one of him standing with famous auto racing driver A.J. Foyt.

"Automotive was all we thought of," added Anthony. "We made a little race-track and would put lawnmower engines on bikes."

Anthony ran GE Capital Fleet Service in Farmingdale for 20 years. He started his own business, Fbls Inc., part of the Automotive & Repair Industry, in 1994, and is its president. "That's when I started to regularly come here and help out when I wasn't busy," he said.

The ramshackle building on the corner of Middle Road and Foster Avenue itself has history, starting out as a horseshoeing and fender repair in the late 1800s, then a 1940s car dealership. (Michael showed a 1981 Suffolk County News ad he wrote. "Sheila Rettaliata took the photo," he said. He even remembers his first customers, Richard and Bonnie Frank, who needed a master cylinder on their Buick.)

The business started with four bays; two more were added in 2000. "We've had from five mechanics at one time to three, plus me working," Michael said.

They service about 26 different cars daily. "Our phone is always ringing," said Anthony. It's true. Try every three to five minutes. (Applause to the mechanics. They rock.)

Michael, who lives in Bayport, will stick around and is leaning towards real estate. Anthony, who lived in Bohemia, already sold his house and was moving to the west coast of Florida, north of Tampa, where he's had a home for 15 years. Amendola, who lives in Shirley, who started out as a mechanic elsewhere and has been with Michael's Auto Repair for 21 years, will continue his hiking forays a bit more. "I'll maybe pick up my guitar again. I was in a small band—I was the fifth Beatle," he joked, "but we broke it up. I talked to my rhythm guitar player recently and we're talking about getting back again."

The three men have wives and families. They all said they would miss their clientele.

"Most of all, we took care of our customers like family," said Anthony. "Because we came from here and they were family to us." ■

Live concert held at local church

BAFFA choir performs after a two-year hiatus

BY SAM DESMOND

A concert over two years in waiting, the Bay Area Friends of Fine Arts chorus, under the magnificent tutelage and direction of choral master Martha Campanile, performed in person in the Bayport Methodist Church on Sunday, April 10, for a late-afternoon rendezvous to a packed audience.

The theme of the performance was "sing," an activity that pandemic restrictions have kept a tight lid on and has only recently relaxed.

"For a performance last year, we did it completely remotely and wore masks," said Campanile.

To accommodate for COVID-19 restrictions, the BAFFA chorus, which normally sings standing shoulder-to-shoulder on risers, sat approximately 2 feet from each other as the parish hall of the church would allow.

While most performers and audience members chose not to wear a mask, the option was available.

The performance was worthy of a trip to Lincoln Center, with great variety but strong central thematic content in Campanile's curation.

"Organizing a concert is a bit like a putting together a term paper," said Campanile, who has vast experience leading choirs, as she is the musical director and organist at the Patchogue United Methodist Church, conductor of the Brookhaven Chorale Society, and a retired music teacher from Sachem and Brentwood school districts.

Wanting to celebrate the tender beauty and communicative properties of singing, Campanile chose musical pieces from different points in life to gather a sense of overcoming and rebirth, now that live concerts with live audiences have finally made a return.

The BAFFA chorus runs anywhere between 40 to 50 members with a variety in skill level, which is something Campanile factors into her choice of pieces.

"We'll round out something very difficult with an easier selection, so everyone can feel included and challenged at the same time," said Campanile.

"We sang you a lullaby, a love song, but we won't sing you a requiem!" Campanile quipped as she introduced a 17-minute piece by Haydn.

The audience was visibly moved by the performance, with all applauding enthusiastically at the end of each segment.

The final song of the afternoon, "Sing Community Sing," dedicated to addressing and calming the strife of world affairs, ended the performance on a triumphant, enchanting note.

The next concert from the BAFFA choir will be held at the Bayport Methodist Church on June 5 and will be repertory of songs that celebrate "America." ■

Former NYS assemblyman announces Senate run

Weik plans Senate District move

On Monday, Alexis Weik accepted the Republican and Conservative Party nominations for New York's 4th State Senate District. Republican Phil Boyle, who announced he will not be seeking reelection, is currently the state senator for the district. Weik currently serves as the state senator for the 3rd Senate District. The redistricting process, which occurred earlier in the year and was approved by the state Legislature, put Weik's hometown of Sayville in the 4th Senate District. A lawsuit from the GOP to deem the maps unconstitutional is currently pending.

"Today, I proudly accepted the Republican and Conservative Party nominations to run in New York's 4th State Senate District. It is an honor and privilege to follow in the footsteps of Sen. Phil Boyle, who represented this area for decades and who has served as a trusted friend and mentor to me during my first term in the Senate.

"I will campaign hard for the privilege of representing the South Shore communities from Bayport to Massapequa and, while I have represented large areas of the district during my current term and while serving as an elected official in the Town of Islip prior to that, I look forward to meeting and listening to those residents in areas that will be new to me due to redistricting."

Dean Murray, former state legislator, recently announced his run for New York Senate as the Republican and Conservative candidate in the 3rd District. Murray made the announcement along with Suffolk GOP chairman Jesse Garcia, Suffolk County Conservative chairman Mike Torres and NYS Senate minority leader Rob Ort.

Murray said he is an advocate in Albany for South Shore families and business owners. As a New York State legislator, he had a record of fighting against unfunded state mandates and bureaucracy as well as working to find common sense solutions to problems. A Suffolk businessman for roughly 25 years, Murray founded the Long Island Fugitive Finder magazine and website, partnering with local law enforcement to put hundreds of criminals behind bars.

"Under the Hochul and Cuomo administrations, New York has been heading in the wrong direction, with out-of-control crime, rising prices and a focus on a radical liberal agenda rather than protecting and serving local families. It's time to take back New York," said Murray. "I'm running because New Yorkers need to know that they have a clear-cut choice... between sticking with the radical, pro-criminal agenda that has sent this state into a dangerous tailspin... or helping to change the leadership in Albany to return the Empire State to greatness and once again make it a place where people are proud to call home. I will work to change the atmosphere in New York from one of fear and despair to one of pride and excitement for the future that we can create together."

Murray follows in the footsteps of Sen. Alexis Weik, a law enforcement wife and mother, who set the standard of how a senator should represent the people they serve. In addition to his time in the state Legislature and running the Long Island Fugitive Finder, Murray also owned and operated the Long Island Job Finder employment newspaper and website, helping tens of thousands of Long Islanders find new jobs and new careers. Murray resides in East Patchogue. ■

'Stay' on NYS redistricting maps extended to April 20

Both parties will present to appeals judges

BY MARIANA DOMINGUEZ

The redistricting fight in New York continues after a judge from upstate New York threw out the Democrat-created maps and passed congressional and legislative maps deeming them illegal because they favored Democrats due to gerrymandering.

Democrats asked for a stay for the current maps, but the back and forth will continue as the maps make their way through the court system.

NEW YORK STATE

The stay has been extended to April 20 by Justice Stephen K. Lindley of the Appellate Division. On April 20, lawyers for both parties will be presenting to a panel of appeals judges. Republican candidates on Long Island are continuing their campaigns with the Democrat-drawn districts, including State Sen. Alexis Weik, who earlier this week announced that she accepted the Republican and Conservative Party nominations for New York's 4th Senate District after Republican Phil Boyle announced he would not be seeking reelection. Weik, who is from Sayville, had her hometown moved into the 4th Senate District after the Democrat-led redistricting process.

"Today, I proudly accepted the Republican and Conservative Party nominations to run in New York's 4th State Senate District," Weik said in a statement. "It is an honor and privilege to follow in the footsteps of Sen. Phil Boyle, who represented this area for decades and who has served as a trusted friend and mentor to me during my first term in the Senate. I will campaign hard for the privilege of representing the South Shore communities from Bayport to Massapequa and, while I have represented large areas of the district during my current term and while serving as an elected official in the Town of Islip prior to that, I look forward to meeting and listening to those residents in areas that will be new to me due to redistricting."

Running for the 3rd New York State Senate District on the Republican and Conservative lines, Weik's former district, will be former New York State assemblyman Dean Murray. Running on the Democratic line will be former New York State Sen. Monica Martinez. Martinez lost reelection in the 3rd District to Weik in 2020. ■

MY TURN

Love thy neighbor

BY PHILIP RAJ AUGUSTINE

This month marks our 10th year in Sayville. These have been 10 of the most glorious years of my life. My husband, Mark, and I have shared many wonderful memories here and continue to do so in this magical hamlet by the Great South Bay. I recall our first glimpse of Sayville's charming Main Street as we drove down Montauk Highway after viewing a house for sale in neighboring Bayport.

We stopped the car in front of Top Hat's barber and while Mark got a haircut, I surveyed the shops. It was pretty much love at first sight. Over a delicious meal and a glass of wine at Cafe Joelle, we observed our picturesque town through the restaurant's large glass windows and imagined what it would be like to call this place home. We were a couple who sought a weekend retreat away from Manhattan and found Sayville to be most idyllic in terms of location and beauty.

Sayville is a small town with a tight-knit community of loving and caring humans. One such human was realtor Caroline Sweezey, who found us the perfect home on Gillette Avenue.

With the help of Ms. Sweezey, we purchased a beautiful Victorian home built in 1905. At one point our home was known as The Alvin House—one of many hotels that proliferated in the area when Sayville first became a popular summer tourist destination in the late 1800s. Eventually a boarding house, The Alvin turned into an eyesore when it lost much of its grandeur and fell into disrepair. Fortunately, our home was gut-renovated, restored, and modernized by the previous owner. Of the 15 or so houses we viewed, this home easily topped our list, and we moved in fairly quickly.

In the beginning, our time here was marked by long weekends where we relished the extra space in and out of the house. We threw parties and invited our new neighbors to introduce ourselves and get better acquainted with the locals.

Our greatest treasure undoubtedly has been our lovely neighbors, many of whom we now consider close friends. The Wartellas on our left live in a gorgeous landmark house built by Sayville's founding Edwards family. Husband Nick, a retired teacher and resident of 50 years, has been a wealth of local knowledge while his wife, Kathy, runs a thriving insurance business and is an accomplished baker who regularly drops off loaves fresh from the oven.

In fact, food goes up and down our street quite often. In the summer, the Mancuso's on our right share produce from their vegetable garden, while my mom's potato salad has been known to make its rounds during the Christmas season.

It was not until the pandemic that we became full-time residents and made Sayville our primary home. The house became our refuge, a sanctuary that offered comfort and respite from an upended world. During the earliest days of the pandemic, singing songs on my piano in the living room gave me solace as I shared them on social media. Five doors down lives my editor, Linda Leuzzi, who heard about my songs, which led to a front-page feature in this paper and ultimately this column. Our neighbors also played an important role in welcoming my parents, who've spent the last nine months in Sayville escaping the harsh COVID lockdown measures imposed in their home country of Malaysia. My father renamed our town "Safeville" as he enjoyed daily walks to the water's edge, while my mother never failed to delight and take photos of the myriad birds and squirrels in our backyard, calling them our "little neighbors."

The church teaches us about the two greatest commandments of Jesus. The first, is to love God with all our hearts, souls, and minds. The second, and perhaps most poignant, is to love our neighbor as ourselves. These two commandments are connected and form the greatest of all, which is love.

Indeed, the United States draws its strength by virtue of the collective cooperation between neighboring member states, as well as its territories and treaties with global allies.

The ongoing war between Russia and Ukraine—people who share similar cultures and a land border—is a clear example of a lack of love between neighbors in the worst possible way.

Despite the horrors of war in the daily news, stories of love, sacrifice, and the heroism of people abound, sending us a message of hope.

This Easter weekend, as we celebrate Jesus's triumph over death, let us pray for peace among all of humanity—neighbors in this one world we share. Let us begin with ourselves and renew our commitment to love our neighbor as we would ourselves. ■

Practice safe boating at all times

Boating is a recreational activity enjoyed by thousands of people. Spring and summer are prime times of year for boating, though people who live in temperate climates may be able to enjoy boating all year long.

Everyone who takes to the water, novices and experienced boaters included, should be familiar with boating safety guidelines. In fact, it is a good idea to take a boating safety course prior to boating for the first time or as a refresher if it has been a while since reviewing the rules of the water.

Boating safety goes beyond learning basic operation and navigation. Safety guidelines also involve getting a vessel safety check. The U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary offers complimentary boating examinations. They can verify the presence and condition of safety equipment required by federal and state organizations. Boaters also may be able to conduct virtual vessel exams. This means boat owners can perform a self-inspection of the boats based on digital prompts. People who reside in Canada can contact the Office of Boating Safety to confirm whether vessel checks are required and how to get one. Licensure and registration of boats are part of responsible boat ownership both in the U.S. and Canada.

Along with boating inspections and water rules, some other ways to stay safe involve educating oneself of the larger dangers on the water. These generally involve risky boater behavior, such as failing to wear a life jacket or having an inadequate number of life jackets for passengers. Alcohol use while boating also can be problematic. Being under the influence can adversely affect boaters' reaction times and decision-making abilities. According to the 2018 U.S. Coast Guard Recreational Boating Statistics Report, alcohol continued to be the leading known contributing factor in fatal boating accidents in 2018, accounting for 100 deaths (19 percent) of total fatalities. Curbing alcohol use while boating can help avoid accidents and deaths.

Excessive speeds also can derail nice days on the water. The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department says that, although there are no numerical speed limits on the water, excessive speed can cause accidents in crowded areas. Speeding makes it difficult to react to obstacles — including underwater wildlife — and bring the boat to a stop within a safe distance of others.

Boating season is heating up, and that means making safety a big part of operating and enjoying a vessel.

Protecting and Enhancing Long Island's Environment

It's been 52 years since the first Earth Day. The good news is that the air that fills our lungs, the land upon which we live, and the water that surrounds us are much cleaner today than in 1970. The bad news is that there are serious challenges ahead. Today, our ground water is threatened, climate change is happening, and government is idly watching as a waste crisis blankets Long Island.

On Earth Day and every day, we should reflect on our own habits and focus on the things that we can do to reduce our footprint and protect Long Island's air, land and water. It's time to acknowledge how much waste we produce as a society and do something to ensure pollution is properly managed.

We should take no comfort that our biggest export off of Long Island is garbage. Nor should we be proud that millions of pounds of waste are burned on Long Island every day. The carbon emissions that belches from smoke stacks both day and night is contributing to climate change while the black, toxic ash left behind is an unwelcome reminder of society's consumption.

Recycling is one solution. In 2020, Winters Bros. and the Town of Brookhaven built the largest and most sophisticated recycling center on Long Island. Environmentally and economically, recycling has made good common sense. We created jobs and helped taxpayers as the Town of Brookhaven recycle more than 35 million pounds of material for which the Town received a rebate of $1,700,000 in 2021.

There is much to do in our quest to be more sustainable: lower vehicle emissions, reduce carbon emissions that contributes to climate change, and reduce the amount of trash each of us generates.

We also need to advance zero waste initiatives and develop a circular economy with local markets for recyclables. People who want to do something need to commit themselves to implement just and equitable solutions for environmental challenges.

One can legitimately ask...where is the leadership? Where are the big, audacious pieces of legislation that will protect the people and the environment? In the past, laws such as the Clean Water Act, Clean Air Act and Resource Conservation and Recovery Act have been game changers. We need elected officials who will fight for Long Island. We need regulators who enforce laws and chase down illegal dumpers. And, we need Senators and Assembly members who advance needed legislation such as minimum content laws to close the recycling loop and require recyclables be used in the production of products and packaging.

As is the case with most big problems, no one entity can solve it alone, but if we all take action, we can make progress together. It will not be easy and it will not be cheap. But, protecting and enhancing Long Island's environment is worth it!

Happy Earth Day!

Mulching mistakes to avoid from the folks at Got Mulch

It's that time again and people are excited about getting their yards and backyards in shape for the season ahead. Arielle Crothers, owner of Got Mulch, is ready to help with all your Spring and Summer Projects. She welcomes homeowners and contractors at their convenient Yaphank location at 81C Old Dock Road. Got Mulch offers Free Local Delivery to its local area and warmly opens its doors Monday through Saturday. They also offer online shopping or you call them. They supply Long Island's finest mulch at the best prices. Got Mulch strictly carries Colored Mulch. Our Mulch is made from solely oak wood, double shredded pallets, and colored with the best dye. Our mulch is proven to retain its color for far longer than its competition. This recycled mulch product is an economical choice for both small and large landscaping projects.

Mulching seems like a simple task, and it can be. But that does not mean homeowners cannot make mistakes when mulching. The following are some common mulching mistakes to avoid as lawn and garden season hits full swing.

Not enough mulch:

Mulch is ineffective when spread too thin. The Virginia Cooperative Extension at Virginia Tech and Virginia State University recommends applying mulch no less than two inches in depth. Anything less than that will prove ineffective at preventing weed growth and helping the soil retain moisture, and that means you will need to water more often.

Poorly located mulch:

Mulch should not be placed too close to plant stems or tree trunks. When it is, tissue is so wet that it makes for a perfect environment for disease and insect infestation.

Failing to weed before mulching:

Weeds should be removed prior to mulching. If they're not, the mulch can provide the same growing environment for weeds that you're trying to create for your plants and trees.

Mulching benefits a landscape in myriad ways, especially when homeowners avoid some common mulching mistakes. For information call 631-289-5258 or visit GotMulchLI.com.

Exterior renovations that can improve home value

Renovating a home to improve its value can be a smart investment. Interior improvements, such as updating kitchens and baths, offer good return on investment, but there are plenty of exterior renovations that can add value to a home and give it that coveted “wow” factor.

Landscaping: Abundant and well-planned landscaping can instantly boost curb appeal. According to the landscaping company Lawn Starter, 71 percent of prospective home buyers say a home’s curb appeal is an important factor in their buying decisions. As buyers use the internet to look for their dream homes, there’s no denying a beautifully landscaped, nicely photographed property can entice buyers to click and read more about a house.

Address insects and minor repairs: Improving home value may come down to fixing areas of the home that can negatively affect its appeal to buyers. Hire an inspector to look at key components of the house and recommend what needs to be fixed. This way it is discovered before home buyers come in and do their own inspections. Termite infestations, deteriorating roofs and hidden water leaks are some things that might need fixing.

Improve the entryway: The front door is the focal point of a home’s exterior. Invest in a new door or paint it a striking color to add appeal. Remodeling magazine’s “Cost vs. Value Report 2019” indicates changing an entry door to a steel replacement can offer 74.9 percent ROI. Such a door provides visual appeal and added security — things buyers look for. In addition to the front door, make sure that the entryway has a level walkway, steps that are in good repair, accents that are free from rust or tarnish, and decorative plants.

Outdoor lighting: Outdoor lighting can add to the ambiance of a property and serve as a security feature. Utilize different lights, such as a bright light by the entry, uplighting in trees and shrubs for drama, a light-lined path to the door to improve visibility, and motion-detection lights to improve the security of the property.

Repaint (or reside) the exterior: A fresh coat of paint or new (or cleaned) siding can instantly give homes a facelift. Neutral, warm and inviting colors tend to have the widest appeal. Adding manufactured stone veneer to the home can offer a 94.9 percent ROI, says Remodeling. And after doing the front door and siding, investing in a garage door replacement offers the highest ROI of all exterior projects listed on the “Cost vs. Value Report 2019.” This improvement returns 97.5 percent when selling.

Beginner’s guide to kayaking

Kayaking is a water sport that can be beneficial to the mind and body. Just about anyone willing to spend a day on the water can benefit from learning about kayaking and how to get started with this rewarding activity.

The history of kayaking is interesting. The word “kayak” means “hunter’s boat,” and the Inuit used to rely on these small vessels to catch food by sneaking up on their prey from the water’s edge. Some people still hunt and fish from their kayaks, but many are happy to use them for sightseeing and exercising.

“Paddlesports are increasing in popularity among Americans who desire to connect with the outdoors,” said Christine Fanning, executive director of The Outdoor Foundation. The Outdoor Foundation and The Coleman Company, Inc., found in a Special Report on Paddlesports that 21.7 million Americans enjoyed paddling on rivers, lakes, streams, and other waterways in 2014, the most recent year for which data is available. Paddlesports include canoeing, rafting, kayaking, and stand-up paddling.

Learning how to kayak does not involve a significant initial financial investment. The outdoor experts at REI say there’s a good chance a novice kayaker will not go out and buy a boat immediately. It’s important to first get a feel for the sport and then go from there.

Although it’s not absolutely necessary, it’s recommended that novices take paddling lessons to hone their kayaking skills. Learning the proper technique can help people avoid strain on their neck and back and safeguard their arms from fatigue.

Novices should practice on calm waters until their technique is honed. Lakes are a great place to learn, as rivers and places with mild currents can overwhelm those new to the sport.

One of the easiest ways to get introduced to kayaking is to go with an experienced paddler or tour company. Such companies charge a set price for an excursion that will provide transportation to the drop site as well as the equipment needed for the voyage. Tours may include travel down several miles of a relatively calm waterway, allowing novice kayakers to get a feel for paddling and take in the scenery.

Getting in and out of a kayak can be challenging for beginners. The resource Kayakpaddling.net offers helpful illustrations and animated tutorials about entering and exiting kayaks as well as paddling techniques and safety.

Kayakers should bring some essentials along. A dry pack can keep electronics, food and equipment dry. Remember to wear sunscreen and a hat to keep safe from the sun. A life vest also is essential.

Exercise, fresh air and enjoying the open water are just some of the many draws of kayaking.

Prepare for spring planting

The final weeks of winter, and even the first few weeks of spring, are still chilly in many parts of the world. Despite those last vestiges of winter chills, late winter is a great time to begin preparing gardens for the coming planting season.

Gardens may have to withstand months of harsh weather each winter, and such conditions can take a toll. Gardeners can consider the following tips as they try to restore their gardens and get them ready for spring planting.

- Disinfect your tools. It’s common to clean tools in late fall or whenever they’re typically placed in storage for the winter. But cleaning and disinfecting are not necessarily the same thing. If tools were not disinfected at the end of the previous gardening season, disinfect them before doing any work on the garden. Doing so can ensure any lingering bacteria or fungi on tool surfaces are killed prior to the beginning of gardening season. According to the University of Minnesota Extension, plant pathogens, including bacteria and viruses, can be transferred to and infect plants through bits of soil and plant debris left on shovels and pruner blades. Thoroughly disinfecting such tools prior to using them in the spring is a great way to reduce the risk of disease in your garden.

- Clear debris from garden beds. Leaves, twigs, sticks, and other debris may have gathered in the garden over the winter. Such debris can inhibit the growth of plants and vegetables, so make sure all of it is removed prior to planting. Weeds might even begin to sprout up in late winter and early spring, so remove them before they go to seed.

- Test the soil. Testing the soil prior to planting can help gardeners determine what their gardens will need to thrive in the coming months. Garden centers and home improvement stores sell home testing kits that are effective and easy to use. Once the results are in, speak with a professional at your local garden center about the best time to amend the soil.

- Loosen compacted soil. Soil can become compacted over winter. If compacted soil is not loosened prior to planting, plants will have a hard time getting the water and nutrients they need to thrive. Loosening the soil also provides another opportunity to inspect the garden for any underlying issues, such as fungi or weed growth, that you may have missed when clearing debris or testing the soil.

Late winter is a good time to assess a garden and address any issues that developed over the winter so plants and vegetables can thrive come the spring planting season.

How to pick the right trees for your property

Trees benefit a landscape by serving both aesthetic and utilitarian functions. A home surrounded by healthy green trees can be a sight to behold, and those same trees can benefit surrounding plants and wildlife at the same time.

As appealing as trees are, not all trees and landscapes make for the perfect match. The Arbor Day Foundation notes the importance of planning when designing a landscape. Planning ensures the trees homeowners ultimately choose for their properties will grow well in the soil and moisture present in their yards.

Careful consideration of a handful of variables can help homeowners determine which trees will make the best fit for their properties.

- Height: Homeowners must consider the projected height of a tree before planting it. Avoid trees that will bump into anything when fully grown, as that can adversely affect surrounding greenery and pose a safety hazard. The ADF’s tree sizing guide can be accessed at <https://www.arborday.org/trees/rightTreeAndPlace/size.cfm> and serves as an invaluable resource for homeowners who want to plant new trees around their properties.

- Canopy spread: Trees grow out as well as up, so it’s important to consider their potential width at maturity as well. The ADF sizing guide can help homeowners get an idea of how wide a tree is likely to be at maturity. Trees that spread out quite a bit don’t necessarily need to be avoided, but it’s important that they’re planted far enough apart so they don’t adversely affect surrounding plants. In addition, wide trees that are planted too close together can make the landscape appear crowded, taking something away from its aesthetic appeal.

- Growth rate: Growth rate is an important variable because it can affect how quickly homeowners will see changes in their landscapes. Homeowners who want to plant for privacy can consider trees with quick growth rates or purchase more mature trees that are already near full growth. Those who are not in need of instant transformation can try trees with slower growth rates, which the ADF notes typically live longer than fast-growing species.

- Requirements: Different trees require different amounts of sun and moisture and different soil components to thrive. Homeowners can have their soil tested to determine which trees will thrive in it. Local garden centers can be a great resource for homeowners who want insight as to which trees will thrive in their local climates.

Trees serve many functions on a property. Choosing the right trees for a landscape requires careful consideration of a host of variables.

How to corral spring allergies

Spring is synonymous with rebirth. Each spring, flowers begin to bloom again, grass starts to grow and people from all walks of life rekindle their love affair with the great outdoors. Spring also marks the return of a familiar foe: allergies.

Seasonal allergies can put a damper on even the most welcoming spring day. Thankfully, it's possible for seasonal allergy sufferers to have their spring and enjoy it, too.

- Pay attention to seasonal allergy trackers. Seasonal allergies are now easier to track than ever. For example, Pollen.com is an easily accessible and free site that allows visitors to type in their ZIP codes and access daily allergy reports for their towns and cities. Visitors also can see five-day forecasts that can help them plan trips and other outdoor excursions. Weather.com also offers free allergy reports and forecasts. Individuals with seasonal allergies can make use of these sites and plan their activities based on the information they provide.

- Stay indoors when allergen levels are especially high. The Mayo Clinic notes that there are several things individuals can do to reduce their exposure to seasonal allergy triggers. That includes staying indoors on dry, windy days. This doesn't mean individuals need to lock themselves indoors all spring. But it's important that seasonal allergy sufferers recognize that some days might be too much to handle. Rain helps clear pollen from the air, so individuals who are avoiding the outdoors on days when pollen counts are high should be able to get outside after a good rain without triggering an attack.

- Maintain clean air indoors. The great outdoors is not the only place where allergens percolate. The Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America notes that improving air quality in a home can reduce allergy triggers. Air conditioners can prevent outdoor allergens from entering a home, so utilize units on warm spring days when you might otherwise open the windows. Open windows and screen doors provide easy entry points for allergens like pollen, so turning on the AC when outdoor allergen counts are high can make seasonal allergies more manageable.

- Consider treatments. Over-the-counter treatments like antihistamines, nasal sprays and decongestants provide most individuals with sufficient relief from their seasonal allergies. If OTC remedies are ineffective, treatments such as allergen immunotherapy and a consultation with an allergen may be necessary.

Seasonal allergies can spoil an otherwise welcoming spring day. But there are many ways for individuals to corral their seasonal allergies and still enjoy spring sun.

The buzz about bees

Warm weather and extra hours of sunlight spark flowering trees and plants to bloom anew. This is the time of year when the air is sweet with the aroma of blossoms and the familiar hum of insects can be heard all around.

Not all "bugs" are the same this time of year. While you probably won't want ants invading your backyard grill fest, the presence of bees nearby can be a good thing — even if those curious yellow-and-black critters get a little close for comfort from time to time. That's because almost 90 percent of wild plants and 75 percent of the leading global crops depend on animal pollination, indicates the World Wildlife Federation.

Bees are remarkable creatures in small packages. The following are some bee facts to buzz about, courtesy of the WWF, Save the Bees™, NASA, and the Texas A&M University Honey Bee Information Site.

- There are roughly 20,000 species of bees around the world. Most of them are solitary bees.
- Bees have five eyes. Two of the eyes are large compound eyes with hexagonal facets. The other three are small, simple eyes.
- Honeybees have a move called the "waggle dance." It is a clever way of communicating to tell them where to go to find the best sources of food.
- Bees can carry up to 122 times their body weight in pollen and nectar.

- Bumblebees leave footprint scents behind. They are able to distinguish between their own scents, the scent of a relative and the scent of a stranger as they look for food. They also can avoid flowers already visited.

- Should a queen bee perish, the hive workers will select a new young larva and feed it a special food called "royal jelly." The larva will develop into a fertile queen.

- Bees flap their wings 190 to 200 times per second. They can fly up to 15 miles per hour.

- Female bees can sting; males do not. Losing the stinger will cause the bee to die. The honeybee only can sting once because its stinger is barbed. Bumblebees and hornets can sting multiple times because they have smooth stingers.

- It can require nectar from two million flowers to make one pound of honey.

- Many bees are not aggressive. Simply moving away from them can prevent a person from being stung. Generally, bumblebees and honey bees will only sting by accident or if a nest is being disrupted.

- Wasps are different from bees in that they are mostly known to be predators. They eat other insects and often food that people eat, which is why wasps are more likely to be found around your cookout. Bees tend to be covered in hair, while wasps (which include yellow jackets) are smooth.

REVIEW

For my sparkling-soft skin, I thank Virginia

The spa itself is beautiful, clean, and serene. Virginia, my esthetician for the day, booked me for a brightening facial, but had tailored my services to the needs of my skin.

First, she consulted with me about my skin issues—including redness and slight rosacea. She then opted for some gentler products to keep my skin from flaring.

She was gentle and calm, the perfect combination for the most luxurious facial. Even moments of what you might think would cause “pleasant discomfort”—it was just the opposite. Her extractions were minimal and completely pain free after utilizing a warming melt eliminating the need to “go hard” on pulling out imperfections. However gentle the process, the clarity of my skin leaving did not lack.

Additionally, she used a large, gritty scrub to exfoliate. The facial massage combined with the scrub was, admittedly, the best part. Though it was only her fingers paired with the scrub, it felt as though some magical tool was being used for complete bliss.

Everything about her facial was soft, from the silky oily cleanser to the ending scalp and shoulder and neck massage. The session also featured a light steam and was overall subtly fragrant. I also noticed a few products she used were citrus, which was a scent I listed as my favorite—making the experience ever more custom.

At the end, she topped me off with a brightening serum and tinted moisturizer with SPF—being that I was headed to an event following my session. I left with brighter skin than I had ever had before—with dewy skin and perfect lips.

Before leaving, I was seated in the relaxation room with a warm neck wrap and some Fiji water, the perfect pairing to a wonderful session, feeling welcome and invited to continue to relax rather than rushed out of the place.

Will I be returning? Most definitely. And I highly recommend not only the spa in general, but a session with Virginia as well. Also, upon returning, I have full intention on purchasing a few of the products for home use.

A decorated resume in his 20-plus-year tenure

Coach Doller celebrates 200th win

BY JORDAN STANKOVICH

For over two decades, Christian Doller has been the chairman of the Board for Sayville varsity boys lacrosse. Doller has been a physical education teacher at Sayville High School ever since.

“As I look back now, I would have to say I’m most proud of the fact that I took on the challenge while I was student teaching in 1998 to start the boys program with the help of a handful of community members,” said Doller.

1998 and prior to the new millennium had plans on depositing the foundation for a lacrosse squad that hailed from Brook Street in West Sayville. 2001 was the inaugural season for the Purple and Gold, and it was not long until the program was configured into a mainstay Suffolk County contender year after year, which has made an annual policy of making a run for a county championship. The past two decades, the bystanders of the Sayville community have beheld in awe of teams that consisted of offensive juggernauts and tenacious defense. Doller put in the hard work every day after school in daily enactments of perfecting quality repetition teaching skills to the varsity lettermen.

Arduous practices were held beginning in the frigid February days to the dog days of summer in the blistering June heat. The brotherhood these young men have bonded through the years has meshed (no pun intended) with traditional winning ways of the team. Coach Doller’s mastermind of the sport, along with his benevolence and benignity of putting his players first before anything, has proliferated into all the attainments with not only trophies, but also the athletes learning life lessons that they have grasped and will for a lifetime.

Coach Doller has a decorated resume in his 20-plus-year tenure at the helm of marshaling his teams’ wielding of laced sticks on grass at Greene Avenue. Configuring the lacrosse club in 1998 and being the head coach since the team’s inception in 2001, he has obtained much team opulence, such as countless division championships, coached over 60 all-county lacrosse players, and over 100 players from Doller’s teams have played collegiate lacrosse. Coach Doller’s first win came in 2001 against East Hampton, and that was just the first to proliferate an illustrious journey. In 2009 and 2012, both seasons concluded in hardware. In only the ninth season of the program, Sayville lacrosse became champions: 2009 Long Island Champions, as the team had a commanding 15-6 record defeating Shoreham-Wading River in the Suffolk semifinals, 9-8; Smithtown West 11-9 in the Suffolk County Title game; and Garden City 12-10 in the Long Island Championship at Stony Brook. In the Suffolk County victory against Smithtown West, Coach Doller reached the century mark on the win tally, as that was his 100th win in his career.

The immaculate season came to a close in a loss to Niskayuna in the state semifinal game upstate in Middletown, N.Y. Another indelible season came in 2012 as Sayville won the school’s second Suffolk County Championship. The Purple and Gold’s record was a remarkable 12-5.

Sayville vanquished Eastport-South Manor 14-11 in the Suffolk County semifinals, then overwhelmed Comsewogue 12-5 at LaValle Stadium at Stony Brook University to win Sayville’s second county championship in a span of four years. At halftime in the county title game, the Golden Flashes led by a slim 4-3 margin. The high-powered offense poured it on with eight second half goals, culminating in a 12-5 victory with another trophy and more smiles and grins from the Sayville community. The boisterous win earned Sayville another trip to the Long Island Championship held at Shuart Stadium at Hofstra University, but Sayville fell to Garden City 9-2.

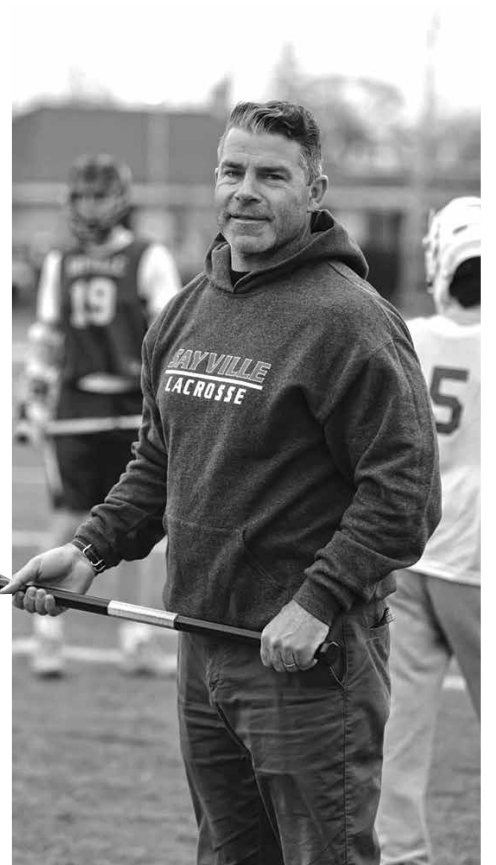

In 2018, the Golden Flashes had another memorable season, making another trip to the Suffolk County finals. In the first round of the 2018 Suffolk County playoffs, Sayville’s brawny offense put on an offensive clinic scoring 15 goals and outlasting Shoreham-Wading River 15-14, advancing to the semifinals. Doller has multifarious personal coaching attainments he has garnered in his long tenure. Doller has been named Suffolk County Coach of the Year five times, was awarded the prestigious honor in 2012 of being named United States Lacrosse NILA Coach of the Year, and thrice was bestowed the glory of North/South Suffolk All-Star Coach on three occasions.

On March 24, Coach Doller’s personal success and team success came full circle as he joined an elite club. Sayville Boys lacrosse defeated Sagem North 8-7 on the road, and that was Doller’s 200th career win. All the hard work and lifelong dedication has compensated in fulfilling meritorious accolades with great honor.

Matt Messina, 2005 Sayville alumnus, former varsity lacrosse player and close friend of Doller, had many kind words to say.

“Christian Doller is a staple in the community and has touched the lives of a tremendous amount of kids and families. He has gone above and beyond in his free time to help families both in sports and in just everyday life where families needed assistance. He is a physical education teacher in the high school, where he is still loved by every student that crosses paths with him,” Messina said. “He often doesn’t get the recognition that so many feel that he deserves in lacrosse-rich Long Island, and it’s mainly because he keeps a low profile. He has sent tons of kids to some of the best college programs in the country and has had players go on to play professionally as well.”

“Coach Doller started the program and built it up into a nationally known program, where you can go to any lacrosse tournament and ask about Sayville lacrosse and they’ll know about it. He is a players’ coach and only cares about mentoring the players that come through the program and coaching them into hardworking winners. He runs clinics all year round for the youth league and runs camps in the summer. He has come to the aid of families in need of help over a multitude of things and has never asked for anything in return or for himself. He puts in countless hours at the locker room, game planning and watching film that often goes unnoticed.”

“There are not many coaches in the country who can claim they started their program from scratch and even fewer who have found as much success as Coach Doller’s program. He won a Long Island championship just nine years after starting the program with middle schoolers. Sayville annually exceeds expectations, but Doller’s success can’t be measured by titles or wins. His former players will attest to the life lessons he instills in his own unique way. He has a genuine care for his players that extends after graduation and beyond the field. The Sayville community has been lucky to have Coach Doller. Congrats on 200-plus,” added Doug Meehan, 2009 Sayville alumnus, former Sayville lacrosse player, current Bayport-Blue Point lacrosse coach and close friend of Doller.

“I’m also very honored to have coached so many great kids that have gone on and become wonderful men, husbands, fathers, and coaches as well. We spend hundreds of hours with our kids during and outside of the season. This time is not only spent on X’s and O’s, but I’d like to think I have an integral positive influence on them as they move forward in life. I hope they understand the benefits of having a solid work ethic, the importance of goal setting and possibly most importantly, forming lasting relationships with your teammates and coaches,” Doller said. “There doesn’t have to be any friction between players and coaches. I’ve always believed I could get more out of them on the field by first developing a positive relationship. Once your players know this, they can honestly accomplish anything together.” ■

Seven marathons in seven days

Ultramarathon runner prepares for military journey

For the sixth year in a row, Eva Casale will complete another meaningful journey. Using her talent to run long distances and capitalizing on her physical and mental focus to run a minimum of 26.2 miles each day, Casale will raise funds and awareness for a cause close to her heart – to honor our troops, our veterans, and our fallen heroes. “This special running tour of over 184 miles enables me to utilize my passion for running to bring Long Islanders together to support programs and services for veterans and to acknowledge and raise awareness for how much ‘every veteran is appreciated,’” explained Casale. “We are especially excited that our journey will conclude in time to kick off National Military Appreciation Month in May to further support the mission of honoring and acknowledging those who have made the ultimate sacrifice to defend our country and to ensure that we never forget.”

From April 24-30, Casale will lead the team during what she calls the “Every Veteran Appreciated Week.” Each day’s marathon will be focused on honoring local servicemen killed in action and will be linked to communities they call home. At the end of the week, the team will have visited over 300 Points of Honor and will have laid over 300 flowers, wreaths, and flags in memory of our fallen heroes.

The event will begin with an opening ceremony hosted by Town of Huntington supervisor Ed Smyth. “Our veterans Ultramarathon runner Eva Casale (pictured waving on right), with the support of her Team E.V.A., will be completing seven marathons (over 184 miles) in seven days to raise funds and awareness to support veterans.

represent the best of what our country stands for and it is important to honor the sacrifices that they and their families have made in the name of freedom and democracy. The Town of Huntington enthusiastically supports Eva and her team as they begin this incredible, unique 184-mile journey to raise awareness, acknowledge and support our Long Island veterans and their families,” stated Smyth.

From Huntington, Team E.V.A. will continue their journey into Northport, LI National Cemetery, Eisenhower Park, Shelter Island, Sag Harbor, Calverton, Westhampton, Brookhaven, Patchogue, Medford, Long Island’s South Shore, Oyster Bay and Bayville. The journey will end in Casale’s hometown of Glen Cove with a special closing ceremony at the Glen Cove City Hall as Casale and her team cross the final finish line. “We are excited and honored to welcome Eva and her team back home to Glen Cove during the final miles of her journey,” explained Glen Cove City mayor Pamela D. Panzenbeck. “The passion and commitment which Team E.V.A. demonstrate as they support Long Island’s veterans is simply remarkable,” she continued.

Once this year’s journey concludes, Team E.V.A. will have completed over 1,104 miles during the past six years in support of their mission.

Support our veterans through Team E.V.A.

Eva Casale is inviting the community to join her during her Every Veteran Appreciated Week in one of the following ways:

Participate in part of the journey: For a $30 donation, you can join Team EVA for a 5K or up to an 8-mile run.

Join the team virtually: For the first time, you can join the team virtually from anywhere in the world you may be located for a $35 donation by simply running or walking a minimum of one mile each day during Every Veteran Appreciated Week.

Donate: Support Team Eva’s mission by donating any amount to the efforts.

Display your flag: Casale also encourages residents and businesses to proudly display American flags during the week.

To follow Casale on her journey, download the GLYMPSE app where Casale can be tracked each day using the hashtag #WheresEva. For more information, visit www.GoTeamEva.org. ■

Earth Day isn't only one day a year

BY SENATOR ALEXIS WEIK

On beaches and in parks, green spaces and backyards across Long Island—and around the world—countless friends and neighbors came together last week to mark the annual Spring celebration known as Earth Day. Started in 1970, Earth Day is time of reflection, and also action, on ways every individual can make a difference both in your neighborhood and for our planet.

But caring for our environment isn't just a one-day concern. I'm looking forward to joining with volunteers in another South Shore tradition of sprucing up one of our favorite local green spaces, on Saturday, May 7th, at the Bayard Cutting Arboretum State Park in Great River.

Starting at 9 a.m., we'll work to remove litter and winter damage to help ready the park for nearly a half million visitors expected this year. All are welcome!

But whether it's the Arboretum or any of New York's more than 200 other state parks and outdoor attractions, we're always seeking ways to protect our open spaces. This year, that included passage of an historic environmental bond act.

More than ever, following two years of pandemic lockdowns, New Yorkers are seeking to reconnect with outdoor spaces, and the bond act, which is subject to voter approval this fall, would fund improvements to our parks, trails and beaches, preserve open spaces, clean up toxic former industrial sites and more.

Here on Long Island, funds from the bond act and a newly expanded state Environmental Protection Fund can be used for critical infrastructure to harden our beaches against storms and erosion and protect our sole source drinking water supply.

Water quality issues are always foremost on my mind. A recent survey found worrying concentrations of chemicals in some of the more than 50,000 private wells that serve homeowners in Suffolk County. I'm drafting legislation that will help homeowners find and pay for regular testing to ensure that their drinking water is safe.

Whether it's writing legislation to help ensure clean drinking water for the next generation, volunteering a few hours to help with our May 7th cleanup at Bayard Cutting Arboretum (or at your favorite park or beach), or just taking steps to make your backyard a little more "environmentally friendly," there's something everyone can do to mark Earth Day—every day.

For more information about our Arboretum cleanup event, call my office at (631) 360-3356, or visit weik.nysenate.gov. ■

Help for Homeowners in Foreclosure

New York State Law requires that we send you this notice about the foreclosure process. Please read it carefully.

Summons and Complaint
You are in danger of losing your home. If you fail to respond to the summons and complaint in this foreclosure action, you may lose your home. Please read the summons and complaint carefully. You should immediately contact an attorney or your local legal aid office to obtain advice on how to protect yourself. Sources of Information and Assistance

The State encourages you to become informed about your options in foreclosure. In addition to seeking assistance from an attorney or legal aid office, there are government agencies and non-profit organizations that you may contact for information about possible options, including trying to work with your lender during this process.

To locate an entity near you, you may call the toll-free helpline maintained by the New York State Department of Financial Services at 1-800-342-3736 or visit the Department's website at <http://www.dfs.ny.gov>.

Rights and Obligations
YOU ARE NOT REQUIRED TO LEAVE YOUR HOME AT THIS TIME. You have the right to stay in your home during the foreclosure process. You are not required to leave your home unless and until your property is sold at auction pursuant to a judgment of foreclosure and sale. Regardless of whether you choose to remain in your home, YOU ARE REQUIRED TO TAKE CARE OF YOUR PROPERTY and pay property taxes in accordance with state and local law.

Foreclosure rescue scams
Be careful of people who approach you with offers to "save" your home. There are individuals who watch for notices of foreclosure actions in order to unfairly profit from a homeowner's distress. You should be extremely careful about any such promises and any suggestions that you pay them a fee or sign over your deed. State law requires anyone offering such services for profit to enter into a contract which fully describes the services they will perform and fees they will charge, and which prohibits them from taking any money from you until they have completed all such promised services.

Local events this weekend

Legis. Piccirillo (R-8th District) has two charity events this Saturday in his district.

The first is Sayville's annual cleanup that starts at 10 a.m. Held in conjunction by Piccirillo's office, The Greater Sayville Chamber of Commerce, The Sayville Civic, and Sayville Rotary Club, the event normally attracts over 150 volunteers. Students will be able to get community service credit for attending this event.

"The more programs and groups with a vested interest that come, the more it brightens our community," said Piccirillo.

The second event is for autism awareness held at the Bohemia Fire Department from 2 to 4 p.m. The event will also be attended by assemblyman Jarett Gandolfo (R-7th District), congressman Andrew Garbarino (R-2nd District), assemblyman Doug Smith (R-5th District), and Town of Islip councilman Jim O'Connor (R-2nd District).

"The community has to understand that people affected with autism are here and working with their challenges. They persevere and it is up to us to raise awareness and engage in advocacy for them," said Piccirillo.
